

Ioannis Vlachos
National Technical University of Athens
yiannis.vlachos@gmail.com

Ioannis Vlachos is a seasoned professional with more than 15 years of experience working with some of the biggest energy companies, consultancy firms, and system integrators worldwide. He is also actively working with both academia and industry in well-known projects in Europe, South America, and MENA region that merge the worlds of energy and ICT. Moreover, Dr Vlachos has been awarded with the “Ericsson Award of Excellence in Telecommunications” and is the author more than 40 scientific publications in international journals and conferences. His current interests are focused at the crossroads of Internet of Things, blockchains, distributed ledger technologies, and cybersecurity with the energy sector. Dr Vlachos holds an MSc and PhD from the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering, School of Engineering of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Greece.